Curator Corner: Thankful for 3 YEARS at the World Scouting Museum!

Hello Museum Family,

Thanksgiving is upon us as we end another November. While we reflect on what we are thankful for in the coming days, I want to reflect on my 3 years as Museum Curator for the World Scouting Museum. We have had a lot of growth and change since I joined the Museum, a lot of which I am extremely proud. This newsletter, our podcast, and the Merit Badge college are specific points of pride for me.

Another great highlight from the last 3 years was winning the West Virginia History Hero last year, something I am so happy to have been awarded. It has been a lot of hard work and new challenges here at the World Scouting Museum but it has all been worth it.

Recently I read that Secretary of Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth has decided he will pull support for Scouting America, something I feel he is unable to do. Congress must declare war for him to rescind support, and it has not. It is a strange situation but he cannot actually pull support for Scouting America. Honestly, it seems like he has always had an issue with Scouting, so I am not surprised to see this. I will however be surprised if he is able to actually change anything at all.

If the US DOD does pull its support for Scouting America it can have some serious consequences nationally and here in West Virginia. Let's hope the Secretary of Defense is unsuccessful in his crusade.

Otherwise, we are here around the Thanksgiving holidays for anyone who is traveling through or visiting West Virginia. This year has been an incredible year for growth in overall Museum attendance and we have recently lowered the suggested donation to $5.

We hope that you have a wonderful holiday and that you will visit us to see some of our new exhibits before 2026

Yours in Scouting,
Alex Bennett

Scouts! The Musical returns to English theatres

Originally running for 3 weeks in London during the Summer of 2023, Scouts! The Musical returns to English theatres in Birmingham, Manchester, London, and Bath for the last time. The musical focuses on the annual Scout Games and a nefarious intruder who comes to wreak havoc.

Not in England? No worries, just scan the QR code next to this article to view the play live from your home! It cost $12 (or Pounds) and you can enjoy the show right from your own home on Lounges.tv. This musical helps to share the story and world of Scouting within a new genre, and we are super excited that it has come back for a final trip around England. We hope that the cast of Scouts! The Musical has a wonderful run of shows and you check out this cool Scouting show!

Edgewood Garden Club and Guest Speaker, West Virginia Apiarist Shanda King

We would like to thank the Edgewood Garden Club for hosting their special meeting featuring guest speaker West Virginia Apiarist Shanda King in our Event Room here at the World Scouting Museum. It was wonderful to learn about bees, honey, and how they impact gardens and our world.

One thing we all were a bit disappointed in was the lack of a current Beekeeping merit badge. With Beekeeping becoming such an important and vital hobby, we all thought it would be nice for it to be brought back.

If you are interested in hosting an event in Charleston, then please reach out to the World Scouting Museum for affordable rates for any event.

Exhibit Spotlight of the Month: The Peanuts, Beagle Scouts and Scouting. How the Boy Scouts and the Beagle Scouts worked together.

This month's Exhibit Spotlight includes Scouting history and the Peanuts, the classic comic strip featured in newspapers around the world. Today, the Peanuts have seen a resurgence in popularity so we thought it would be a great time to talk about the history of the Peanuts and Scouting America.

It was on May 13, 1974, that Snoopy, the iconic Beagle belonging to Charlie Brown, would join the Beagle Scouts at the Tenderpaw Rank. It wouldn't take long for the Beagle Scouts to grow to include Woodstock and some other bird friends.

The Peanuts then later appeared in at least 2 separate Public Service Announcements (PSAs) for the Boy Scouts of America: one for the Cub Scouts featuring Snoopy and the Beagle Scouts, and the other for the Boy Scouts featuring Charlie Brown and a catchy tune. We aren't sure which came first, but it seems like the Cub Scout PSA was made in 1978 and was reused in the 1980s. The Charlie Brown Boy Scout PSA was created and released in 1979. Both of these PSAs were made by the same teams that produced the Peanuts' television specials. If you have any information about when these were produced, when they were reused, and why they went out of use, please reach out and let us know. We don't really have much more information than that right now.

The creator of The Peanuts, Charles Schulz was awarded a Distinguished Citizen Award from the Boy Scouts of America National Area Council in 1987 and the Silver Buffalo Award in 1988 for his contributions to American Culture and Society through the Peanuts comic strips.

His creation would outlive him and today you can find the Peanuts all over. Camp Snoopy, a TV show on Apple TV featuring the Beagle Scouts has brought the Beagle Scouts to a new audience and younger generation. You can find Snoopy and Beagle Scouts in amusement parks as well.

We hope that you have enjoyed this Exhibit Spotlight and ask you to visit our website for more information about the Peanuts, Beagle Scouts and Scouting. Please check out the podcast episode and video for a fun Peanuts story as well!
